

Healing

Question: How does one develop the ability to heal?

Answer: Now we would see the development of healing in this manner: As there is developed within, faith and love, so healing comes as natural result: would be seen in this manner:

That when one would love one enough to give all that you have, to make him whole, perfect and well, there is then the exchange of energy that would produce healing within that body. Healing, essentially, as you would see it, that is, magnetic healing on your plane is a development of energy and can be assisted, can be aided, can be produced, in deep breathing, when there is the attunement. That is, all energy that is needed, that is necessary for accomplishing any task on (the) earth plane exists within the atmosphere of earth

There are elements, there are energies, there are powers within the atmosphere of earth, that man has never yet dreamed of tapping. These can be tapped, however, and used, and have been by those who were the Saints of God for centuries in the manner that they realized that all work according to the Divine Law of God, and that in attuning the mind, the heart, the spirit, with those Divine Laws, all these energies may be tapped and used.

If then, there is available even at this moment, about the body, all the energy that is necessary to build and heal tissue, then all that is left is the directing of this energy.

Be aware then, that there is no direction of this energy without the attunement to the Divine, without the use of the Divine Laws. Become then, as a channel, see self as a channel, realize that what you have been given, that is, the body centers, those centers that you have called "chakras", or the "Kundalini Force," is but an electrical conduit, from this Divine Energy that fills the atmosphere, the Prana of Life. Use this as a conduit between self, between God, and the one that you would heal.

In raising these levels of energy then, through deep breathing, through the filling of the lungs, with the Prana of Life. Now, when there is practice through deep breathing, see that that you are taking in; not only air, not only oxygen and those elements that have been discovered as being a part of the atmosphere, but see, be aware, open your eyes, and realize the fantastic energies that pulsate, that swarm even now about your body. And as you breath deeply, realize that you take in all that is necessary for the healing of any body on this plane.

See no limitation, accept no limitations. There is no disease that you could not heal if you would accept that proper energy into the body, and channel it into the body of the one that you would seek to heal.

Know that all He has done, you can do, and greater things even than the Christ Himself did on this plane, can you do in His Name, as you only would claim this power and channel it for His purposes.

And always there is the knowledge that there is an energy that can be channeled from one to another And this one, if the awareness were given or attuned, might use the hands, might use the touch of the fingertips in such a way that others would feel the exchange of energy or the electrical current or charge, as you will. And this one would associate this in the mind with drawing those energies from the sun.

For in such a manner was this one trained in that School of Prophets and standing before and seeing self as the minister or for the purpose of charging this group with being the services of the Divine. This one would look and seeing in the heart or feeling a quickening inside that this must be so or this encouragement must be given, there would flow those messages of the Divine. And this one would speak even as expressed by that apostle with the tongue of angels, that those who are to be about the Father's business would so be excited in the heart or would be prompted to move about His business. This one then comes with purpose.

And so it will develop naturally, that if this one would become more aware of his connection with the past and with the Godhead in this day, that there will be opportunities for the time and these will fall into place naturally.

For there will be the times that this one would smooth the brow of the Father and the response would be seen in the healing touch, the encouragement that would come and is needed in this manner. There would be other opportunities then as this one and that would be seen to need the touch. And giving the touch there would be a burst of reaction in the other, knowing that energy had come and the vibrations have been changed.

Now see these hands then as Divine charge. See this mind with the ability to seek, this ability to project of the personality and to understand those thoughts of others, those indications, those emotions of another, when there is seen one who needs such encouragement, who needs those words of an actor, then speak them.

And so see the ministry develop, not that this one would drop the worldly activities and become suddenly the minister, for these will develop within the awareness. And this one will know more and more. There is opportunity to serve the Master in these ways. And often will the little children come to be touched, even by the hand of this man who is sent of God, for this healing ministry in the world in this day.

There will as well be the ability to train others in the development of these healing techniques, of the application of the Divine laws of healing, particularly the magnetic and charismatic healing. Then spend often the hours in meditation, feeling self to be alone with God. See then the sun as the solar energy or a battery for the recharging of the cells of self. And even being enclosed, being blocked away from its appearance, feel the ability within yourself to pull the energy of (the) sun even through solid material to recharge the body.

Feel the warmth, then, from the solar energy, penetrating inside of self, reflected from the core of self, back outward then through the tissues of the body. Feel yourself to be electrically charged with His Divine energy and share it with those about. Know that you have the ability go raise the vibrations of all who would come in this presence. Be aware who thou art and function accordingly.

Then if you would be the healer, you must begin where the world begins, that you would lift the burden of the one who is down and take that responsibility for his care; doing, then, those things that the world would do. So you have begun.

Then, being the Child of God, you would go the second mile. Then where is the second mile?

Even so as you pray each day in the morning, do you not pray the words, "As I have health, so I would give unto thee." And how would you give of your health to another? Would you not use your health in service to that one? Is this not then the giving of the health to another?

Then understand those teachings of your Master Be what He would teach you to be. In such ways healing then will begin.

In one way further, you misunderstand the application of those Laws of Healing. Then see them given even in this manner as was given earlier this day.

Mind can be transmuted from plane to plane, from substance to substance, from quality to quality, yet never from the lower to the higher, but always coming from the higher does it manifest in the lower. Or see it in this manner, that all that is, is but a thought of God. Or seeing even further That all that might be manifest would begin at a central point, at an intensity of vibration that would produce no visible effect, nor an effect that could be sensed by any of your instruments. Nor could it be measured, nor seen, nor weighed, nor detected in any manner, for so find would be the vibration.

Then further and further from the heart, from the mind of God, traveling further from the central purpose, then, would be of that vibration, that quality, become denser, more apparent. Then ranging further and further from spirit or from the finest of that which is God, would you find that that is denser on your plane. In such a manner might you understand that that is material. Then if you would heal the material, would you take the hand to place on another's brow that you might heal the other by transferring physical substance, or would you see in this manner.

But we find so many on this plane in the attempt to heal who would sit and feel such futile attempt at placing the hands here or there and expecting some physical feeling or transaction to take place. Dealing, then, physically with the physical and attempting to transmute that which is physical on physical level. But, then, if you would heal even on physical level, would you not forget that illness and would you not do all in love that might be done to help the brother.

Then might you busy yourself by lifting the spirits, creating a new atmosphere, lifting the vibration of all that is about. Making all things cheerful, making all things bright, showing that I would care by preparing a meal and placing the vibration.

And if I would introduce physical vibrations into the body of another, then I would take the vibrations of my happiness, of my physical body, and place it into a meal prepared by my hands. And so would I introduce my physical vibrations into the body of another I would seek to heal.

Then, mentally, if you would deal with the person who is ill, cleanse the thought and prepare the mind and see that end result that you would expect to accumulate. Look at that which you create and prepare it in the mind. Use the mental body, use the mental forces to create that which you would have come into being. And holding, then, steadfastly to the truth, that which you would seek to create as a creative being, then put this forth.

Then having done these, having created physically the atmosphere and mentally created that which you would have achieved, then would you sit. And putting all aside, would you join the soul of him who lies on the couch and cause the spirit to take flight. Leaving the physical plane then, flying then on up, letting the self be released from these cares, from the denser plane. Traveling closer to the heart of God where the vibrations are higher, where there is not the density, where there is the origin of all thought and where the two become One. And here, smiling and joyous, would you lift the spirit in singing, in prayer, in worship, in laughter, and seeing spirit healed. Then would not the spirit settle again into matter, bringing such healing vibrations back into matter that nothing that is material could fail to respond.

But observe that which has been taught, and let him who would have no more than fifteen minutes or an hour be on his way. For often these things may take two hours a day. They may take seven days. But what man among you, if it be his child, his wife, his own body, would be the more concerned that it be seven days than that it be one day? Even so, care for thy brother as thyself. And learn the first Law of God.

Now my brethren, until you learn these things and until you understand just how surely these things are given, thou shalt not be able to apply those Laws of Healing. Until you are able to give all to strengthen a brother who is weak, thou canst not understand even the beginning of His Law.

Now it has been given you that even the Master Himself sat while learning and for hours mopped the fevered brow. He spent the times manipulating the diseased limbs. With patience, He carried the water, He bathed the bodies, He cheered the spirits by singing, He played upon the harp.

Now brethren, there were the times when there would be spent many hours of the day using the different methods of healing, those as might be seen to you as entertainment - the singing, the strumming of the harp, the telling of the stories, those methods calculated to change the mood, to lift that spirit. There were the times of fervent prayer for the lifting of spirit. There were the times of bathing the body in cool water for comforting. There were the times of stimulating of the circulation by rubbing the hands and the feet. There was the assurance by rubbing the hands and the carrying out those unpleasant tasks. There were the telling of the anecdotes, the short stories to make on laugh. There were the painting of scenes, the pictures, the colors that were brought to surround the ones. Yea, He studied all the Laws of Healing.

Understand this brethren, for so must you do. For there is a need in this day that there would be those who would love so that they would give all, even in these ways that those who suffer might be relieved.

Then what purpose would the spiritual servant be needed then, to serve the sick? Why, then, would not the time be better spent on those sick in spirit, those who need the words of God?

But brethren understand, we would teach you to love, for how could He go forth without love teaching of Him who is Love. But we would teach you to love by making those sick among you that you may so give of your health one to another, thus learning the Laws of Love.

Then see those reasons for illness among you and learn therefrom and give thanks. Laugh! Be happy! Be glad for such opportunity for service for never have there been men so blessed as you who come in these last days to learn these last few lessons that would transmute those physical vehicles that you inhabit into vessels fit for children of the King. For in so changing these vessels, those vessels, by blessing them with so much love, even the vibrations of thine body will be changed to so much finer, higher rates of vibration that these physical bodies will become light bodies. And they will become not skin to that which is the physical earth, that where is material. And as the heaven and earth shall pass away and all shall be made new, so shall you be in that body that would be a part of the new and carry His likeness into the higher manifestation of all that is.

Now understand, children, that which is brought and the reason that it is brought. So much have we given. So much has been recorded here. So few have heard. What will you do with the words of the Master?

In those lands of Egypt, in those later times, as there were the studying there of the Master John and the Master Jesus, these became interested in those works of the Therapeutae, or as called, the healers of the Essene Community there, those who traveled about, and laying on the hands with the praying. Extending the hand toward the heavens, there was called great energy that went from the aura of one to the other and produced great healing results such that were known throughout the world of that time.

This one being, then, the physician in Egypt, was drawn in curiosity, thinking that, "If I can learn these secrets in a short time, I might develop such abilities and treat my patients in such a way that I would introduce these laws. Laying the hands upon them, then, they would be healed."

These then, made the journey together to that community in Qumran and hoping to sit at the feet of a wise man and taking of the notes. Learning the lessons, then, might understand the application of that law.

Yet this one arrived and upon arriving saw those caves cut in the cliffs above the (Dead Sea) River Jordan. And in those caves, there came the amazing sight to the eyes. And that which broke the heart in that time, that which could not be accepted, but was rejected to the detriment of his growth. For this one saw those students of healing, those who would become the Therapeutae and even the Master Himself sitting between the litters, the cots, carrying the water, caring for those ill, singing, using the music of the harp, using the colors, learning the arts of healing, even as he had studied in the universities there.

And this one failed to understand then, that there was a further lesson being taught. That communication of souls, that caring within the heart that would make it able or make possible that adjustment within the mind, so that these things being physically done, in the studying in these days, might be transmuted to a different level.

Or that rather than physically performing all of these acts, they might take place in the higher self or in the aura in other subtler levels of vibration.

And these coming to understand through intense training of the mind, of the spirit, they came to understand that that which was acts out in the physical was not limited to time or space and could take place in a single second as easily as taking place in months of care of the patient.

So in the perfect understanding of the law, so could the law be applied through the higher self, through the spirit, through the Creator.

Yet, this one was unable to understand and seeing the labor of some thirty or forty years required in such training for a healer, went his way disappointed.
