Why is my personality such that I am a loner and lack ties? I always seem apart. Is this simply a result of an unstable childhood or past life karma?

A-1. Yes, we have the body, the consciousness, the pattern surrounding and relation with Universal Forces.

Now, this aspect of personality may be observed in a number of different ways. Of course it is karmic. However, those situations of childhood are designed by karma or influences of the past, but include, as well, the make up of the physical system as it affects the thought process, or is the result of the thought process in this manner: there is a situation, an imbalance that is in your time, through observances by your therapist, classified as "autism". That is, an attempt to describe an impersonal relationship of soul within a body toward things surrounding, and other people.

Now, the term as is used by your therapist in this time or classified as an illness, a disease, does not so much apply to this one, this person as the similarity of imbalances of minerals, particularly metals within the system and their effects on the nerves, produce at times similar symptoms or relationships with others, and with objects. We are attempting to describe here that difficulties in the consciousness and the expression of personality are partly result of nutritional imbalances in the physical. This one will find much easier relationships with others and with the body, your own body, by correcting these balances, and this may be accomplished with the addition of gold, copper, zinc and niacinamide in the body, in the diet.

They may be introduced in this manner: A mineral supplement containing traces of zinc, copper, chromium would be of assistance in pancreatic action, in stabilizing blood sugar balances. And gold may be taken internally in very small amounts of gold chloride, one drop, along with one drop bromide of soda in a half glass of water once each day, building, then, for five days sequentially, leave off for two and take again for five.

Now this as a food supplement or vitamin supplement, a mineral supplement to the body, you'll find stimulating to the nerve forces, not so much a physical reaction to this. Leave off after some 4 to 5 weeks. Will be sufficient in correcting this balance. At the same time, we'll find activities, interrelationships with others improving through adjusting to the physical body in this manner.

Now, as to conditions in earlier times, we find this one disillusioned with relationships with others and particularly love relationships, causing a vow within the self never to build a dependency on another, particularly emotionally, again. This vow, this deep hurt in earlier times has caused this one to enter this lifetime with the stubborn determination to build a shell about the self, to be independent in expression to all things, both objects and family. This one's family and all possessions were taken from him in the most recent past, and in three successive lifetimes a similar pattern of karma.

Though it should be understood that the reoccurrence of a similar pattern of karma is intended by the soul to build strength in that particular type of relationship. That is, possessions were taken from this one to teach the proper balance, the proper relationship to possessions. However, this one has gone from an extreme of being attached to possessions to an opposite extreme of being quite impersonal toward possessions and others.

Now there need be a balance, an ability to relate, an ability to appreciate both possessions and loved ones without becoming dependent or hurt. That should be the relationship sought in this time, particularly to build a satisfactory life, personal relationship with a mate in this time and should be sought.
